

A Note from the Athenium Analytics CEO

Greetings,

First and foremost, we at Athenium Analytics send our wishes in hoping you, your family and your colleagues are well. In this uncertain time, the health of our business community, from coast to coast and internationally, is of the utmost importance.

In accordance with recommendations from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, we have temporarily closed offices and expanded our teleworking to include all operations. This move will have no effect on access to our products or normal business procedures.

The Athenium Analytics staff remains available to answer any questions or concerns you may have regarding our solutions and operations. Please contact your account manager with inquiries. As the situation evolves, we will communicate any new developments.

Thank you and stay safe.

Sincerely,

Bill Pardue

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
